"A book of rigorous scholarship, brilliant original insight, and great practical importance."

—John B. Cobb, Jr.,
Center for Process Studies

"I have no doubt of the significance of this book for future work in the field."

—Daniel Boyarin,
University of California, Berkeley

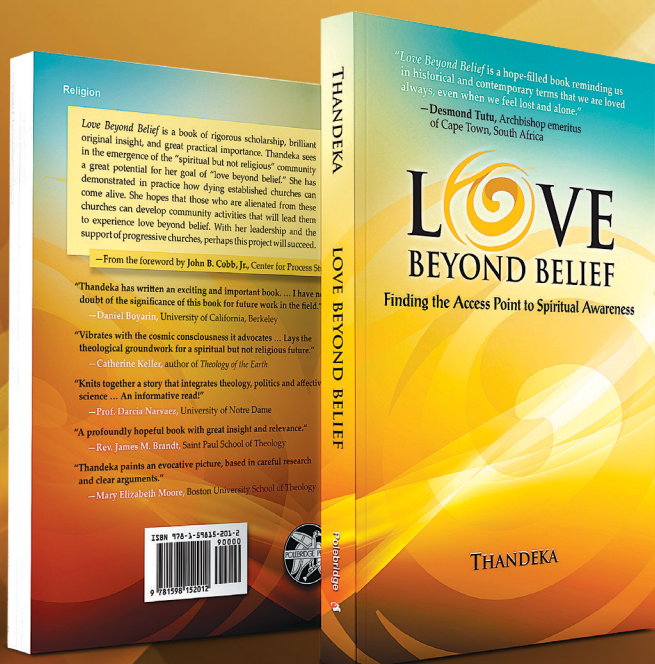

"A hope-filled book reminding us in historical and contemporary terms that we are loved always, even when we feel lost and alone."

—Desmond Tutu,
Archbishop Emeritus of Cape Town

"Vibrates with the cosmic consciousness it advocates... Lays the theological groundwork for spiritual but not religious future."

—Catherine Keller, author of Theology of the Earth
